

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

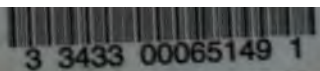

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. EXPLANATIONS.

IN the Card Catalogue, to which the following Index refers, the books of the library are carefully classified, according to the plan of decimal division and subdivision devised by Mr. Melvil Dewey, now Director of the New York State Library, and Secretary of the Board of Regents of the University of New York. Those who wish to acquaint themselves familiarly with the scheme of classification will find it detailed in the last pages of this volume. But, for ordinary purposes, the Index is intended to be so plain a guide to the catalogue cards, and to the contents of the library which are represented in them, that no such acquaintance will be necessary on the part of those who consult it. The directions to be followed are simply these :

Find in the subjoined Index the subject on which it is desired to ascertain the resources of the library, and note the number or numbers printed opposite. Turn to the corresponding number in the Catalogue (which is numerically arranged), and there, on successive cards, each bearing that number, will be found (1) the full, or nearly full, titles of all books in the library which relate specifically or mainly to the subject in question, and (2) references given to other books which relate to the same subject incidentally or in part, or which may be usefully consulted in connection with it. By means of these last named reference cards, the books of the library are, to an important extent, indexed as well as catalogued. Each book is designated and identified by two numbers, one which indicates its class, and the other its place in the class, and these two together, placed one above the other, must be given in calling for the book. On the cataloguing cards, the two numbers precede the book-title, in the upper left-hand corner; but on the reference cards they follow the title, and only the Class Number is found in the upper corner. It must be remembered that the two numbers, placed fractionwise, wherever found on the card, are the ones required for the designation of a book.

Where there are other numbers on the left-hand margin of a card, below the two here mentioned, they are Class Numbers that indicate other subjects on which the book may be consulted.

Books larger than the octavo size are assigned to bottom shelves, with a distinct series of Place Numbers, and the fact is signified by a letter "B" marked before the Place Number. A similar marking with the letters "R," "S" or "T" indicates books still larger in size, having a special place, out of the regular shelf arrangement. Some other markings of the same kind merely indicate certain special shelf arrangements out of the regular order, which it has been necessary to make in the case of certain descriptions of books.

Gazetteers and guide-books are classified with books of travel and geography, according to country; but, for the purpose of keeping them together, and distinct from others of the same geographical class, for readier reference, they have distinct series of Place Numbers, marked with the letter "W," and may always be found at the end of the book numbers in the geographical sections to which they respectively belong.

In calling for a book which has any of these special marks, the marking letters must be given as well as the numbers.

Systematically, in the scheme of classification, the Class Numbers do not extend beyond three figures, 999 being the highest. Where a fourth figure appears, it is in the fractional form, and signifies a subdivision of the section that is numbered by the three figures preceding it. For example, 971 is the Class Number for History of the United States at large; but it has been found expedient to divide this history into five periods. Accordingly, works which relate only to the first period are Class-numbered 971.1; works which relate only to the second period, 971.2, and so on; while works which cover all the periods, or several of them, receive the primary Class Number, 971.

The point to be understood is this, that these fourth figures, being fractionally appended to the regular Class Numbers, do not break the numerical succession of the latter, which begin at 10 and terminate at 999.

When, in the Index of Subjects, two or more numbers, not successive to one another, are referred to, there are different sides of the subject indicated, or different relations in which it may be found treated.

When there are two numbers referred to from the name of a country, without explanation, the first one may be taken as a direction to works of travel and description, and the second one to works of history.

When the reference from any subject is to certain successive numbers—as in 796 to 799 (Athletic Sports), or in 636 to 636.5 (Domestic Animals)—there is a subdivision of the general subject indicated, which cannot always be explained in the Index, but which is plain in the catalogue itself.

When the reference is to several numbers with certain decimal recurrences (as in “Fables, 819, 829, 839, etc.”), the fact signified is a classification by country (Collections of fables, English fables, German fables, etc.), which will be readily discovered when the catalogue is resorted to.

The following abbreviations are commonly used in the catalogue: Ed. editor, edited, or edition; tr. translated; rev. revised; enl. enlarged; cor. corrected; aug. augmented; add. additions; imp. improved; pseud. pseudonym; anon. anonymous; illus. illustrated; int. introduction or introductory; pref. preface; biog. biographical or biography; eng. engravings; pub. published or publication; soc. society.

The abbreviated names of places of publication, such as Lond. London; Edin. Edinburgh; Balt. Baltimore; Cin. Cincinnati, etc., can always be readily understood.

The sizes of books are determined, not by the fold of the sheet, according to the old rule, but by an arbitrary scale adopted by the American Library Association. Books under one decimeter high are called 32°, and marked T; the next size, under 1.5 deci. 16°, and marked S; the next, under 2 deci. 12°, and marked D; the next, under 2.5 deci. 8°, and marked O; the next, under 3 deci. 4°, and marked Qr; all others Folio, without exact designation of size.
